

Lesson Seven

13. Attached ya’ indicating “me” or “my” The refers to extra on the end of the word denoting a direct object or possessive. In the specific case of the qira'aat, we pay attention to the which occur before that has a , a or a kasrah, or before a that occurs as part of a or without it, or before any other letter.

A. Qaloon, like Warsh reads this with a on when it occurs before a with a , a dhammah or a kasrah, except the words that are excluded from the rules. There are nine that are exceptions with the which has a in the beginning of the next word following one of the , meaning Qaloon reads these words with a sukoon on the . They are:

(Al-Baqarah 152) (Al-A'raaf 143) (At-Tawbah 49) (Hud 47) (Maryam 43)
Ahqaaf 15) (Ghaafir 26) (Ghaafir 60) All other cases of followed by a that h with a . on the B. There are 10 exceptions to which are followed by a with a kasrah. The normal rule for Qaloon in these occurrences is that the are read with a . The following exceptions then are read with a sukoon on the . They are:

(Al-A'raf 14) (Al-Hijr 36) (Sad 79) (Yusuf 33) (Yusuf 100) (Al-Q
(Ghaafir 43) (Al-Ahqaaf 15) (Al-Munafiqun 10) The riwaayah of Qaloon reads these above words

sukoon on the ya’. Qaloon has two allowed ways of reading the added in surah FuSSilat, with a on the and a sukoon on the : (Fussilat 50). All the rest of the followed by a hamzah with a kasrah are read with a .

C. There are two exceptions to the followed by a with an accompanying dhammah. As stated at the beginning of this lesson the normal reading for Qaloon is a on the when followed by a with a dhammah. These two exceptions are read with a sukoon on the . The two exceptions are: (Al-Baqarah 40) (Al-Kahf 96) .

D. There is a on all the followed by a word beginning with in the recitation of Qaloon, such as in: (Al-Baqarah 124) .

E. Qaloon also reads with a on the followed by a word beginning with hamzah al-wasl other than except the following three phrases which are read with a sukoon on the : (Al-A'raaf 144) (Ta-Ha 30-31) 27)
